SEMINAR REPORT

ON

ENGLISH LANGUAGE AS A COMMODITY

ORGANISED BY: UGC-SEMINAR COMMITTEE

DATE: 29.07.22

TIME: 01.00 pm - 2.30 pm

VENUE: Seminar Hall, 2nd Floor

OBJECTIVE OF THE SEMINAR:

The seminar was aimed at making the students aware of the commodification of language which has increased the meaning of a language from just being a medium of conversation to being something more profitable.

SPEAKER:

Ms. Tahira Tashneem, Assistant Professor, Department of English, GGDC, Mangalkote

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SEMINAR:

The speaker began her deliberation by explaining the concept of commodification of English which means the treatment of the English language as an economic resource that has a significant market value. The lecture was divided into two parts. The first part dealt with the concept of commodification of the English language and the second part explicated the consequences of this process. Firstly, she explained how English language has played a vital role in influencing the economic globalization of the present day. Referring to the contemporary situation, she elaborated how the commodification of English is a common and continuing process and that its influence over the new capitalism has several overreaching consequences. She mentioned that, significantly, English, among all the other dominant languages, is leading the domain of international business and has achieved the status of a precious commodity in the world linguistic market. Talking about its history, she mentioned that the first known practice of treating English as a commodity can be traced back to the industry of English language teaching. Then, she went on to describe how the increasing financial value of English has encouraged families, organizations and nations to invest funds in its development and improvement. She showed how nations with a majority of English-speaking people are economically placed in an advantageous position than the nations where English is a foreign language. The lecture also pointed out how proficiency in English communication becomes an important factor for survival in international commerce. It has also discussed in detail the communicative practices of new capitalism and its constant attempt to create a standardized form of language. However, such a tendency often produces a contradictory result. Instead of one standard form of English, the linguistic industry experiences the existence of heterogeneous varieties of the language. Finally, the lecture emphasized the necessity of being proficient in English, as it is the dominant language in all service sectors such as academics, research, diplomacy and digital media.

PARTICIPANT DETAILS:

NO. OF STUDENTS REGISTERED FOR THE PROGRAMME: 39

NO. OF STUDENTS ATTENDED THE PROGRAMME: 38

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAMME:

The students came to know about 'English Language' as something more than just a medium of conversation. They also came to know how being proficient in the language can give them a competitive edge in various fields.

AT: 01.00 P.M.

Venue: Seminar Hall, 2nd Floor

ABOUT THE PROGRAMME:

The current market treats English Language as a commodity since it has led to economic globalization. As such, it is treated as an economic resource. This actually points out the language and communication skills of workers in a international platform which, at times, is regarded as international business dialogues. Since, it is the official language of many countries it helps in bridging the communication gaps between people from different cultural backgrounds. As such, adapting English Language communication skills is very important from the career-perspective. The programme aims to discuss these aspects of English Language to increase their preparedness for their future career goals.
